WASEDA UNIVERSITY
Tokyo, Japan

Message from the Dean

Waseda in the World - the World in Waseda

At the School of International Liberal Studies, we aim to produce future leaders in a worldwide context - people with the intelligence, analytical skills and attitude to problem-solving who can apply what they have learned in the field that they have chosen, for their own good, for the good of their community, and for the good of the world.

The broad-ranging multidisciplinary liberal arts courses that we offer, combined with the chance to study in greater detail under world expert guidance, will lay what we see as the basic foundation for such a future. Our one-year study program is no longer separated from our mainstream undergraduate courses, which means that those who come to us for one year can integrate with regular students and enjoy the benefits of a very diverse curriculum as well as the chance to make long-lasting acquaintances with students and teachers of extremely diverse backgrounds.

Young people with an interest in Japan, or the rest of East Asia, or Asia as a whole, will find our curriculum especially attractive. They will study together with our ordinary Japanese undergraduates and a large number of both undergraduates and one-year participants from all of the major Asian nations. Since the majority of our classes are taught in English, our doors are open to those without advanced Japanese language skills; but we do give rigorous training in Japanese to our overseas participants.

We are proud of our leading position among Asian universities, and welcome talented students who are willing to take on the challenge of joining us, and contributing to our pioneering role.

SNOWDEN, Paul

Dean

School of International Liberal Studies, Waseda University (SILS)

THE ORIGIN OF WASEDA UNIVERSITY

The founding of Waseda University dates back to 1882, when Shigenobu Okuma (1838-1922) founded Tokyo Senmon Gakko (or College). Early records show that 80 students applied for admission to the newly opened school, and these pioneering youths were distributed among the Departments of Political Science, Law, English, and Science. The school later became Waseda University.

Shigenobu Okuma was one of Japan's foremost statesmen, who helped to guide the destiny of his country through the turbulent days of the Meiji Restoration and the early Taisho Era. In 1869, he was appointed Finance Minister and subsequently Foreign Minister. During a period of retirement from government, he organized the Rikken Kaishinto (or the Constitutional Progressive Party) and became its president in 1882, which attracted other leaders who became the faculty of the Tokyo Senmon Gakko. In 1896, Okuma was again appointed Foreign Minister, and two years later he became Prime Minister, organizing a cabinet with Taisuke Itagaki, another prominent statesman of the Meiji Era.

In his later years, while not holding public office, Okuma lived in his residence at Waseda, discussing current affairs with distinguished visitors, both Japanese and foreign. Okuma returned to politics in 1914 and served a second term as Prime Minister. For his services to the country in World War I, he was promoted to the rank of Marquis.

THE PRESENT STATUS OF WASEDA UNIVERSITY

As a result of increasing academic prestige and expanding student enrollment, the institution acquired the status of a university in 1902, and its name was changed to Waseda University. There are at present 16 undergraduate schools offering programs of study leading to bachelor's degrees and 24 graduate schools for master's and doctoral degrees. The total university enrollment now is approximately 52,000, comprising 45,000 undergraduate and 7,000 graduate students. The number of international students is over 2,000, the largest among private universities in Japan. The academic faculty consists of 1,600 full-time and 3,000 part-time teaching staff. The University is staffed by approximately 1,000 administrative personnel, including librarians, technicians, and other staff.

The Central Library houses about 4 million volumes of foreign and domestic books, and the International Center Library contains about 50,000 volumes closely related to the courses offered at SILS.

INFORMATION FOR THE ACADEMIC YEAR 2008-2009

Located in central Tokyo, the School of International Liberal Studies (SILS) is Waseda University's newest undergraduate division opened from April 2004. In this small and elite college of 2,400 students, classes are largely conducted in English by an international faculty, and up to one-third of its multicultural student body comes from outside of Japan, largely from other Asian countries. During their second year, most of SILS students will also participate in study abroad programs outside of Japan, adding a global perspective to their broad education in liberal arts and the modern world. In addition to this degree-seeking program, SILS offers a One-Year Study Abroad Program to international students. The participants in the One-Year Study Abroad Program can take courses with the SILS regular students. This unique setting makes it well-suited for a one-year study abroad program for students from around the world, who are seeking to gain a better understanding of Japan through such widely varied perspectives as politics, journalism, art, education, and industry.

1. Length of Study

The SILS One-Year Study Abroad Program has been designed for a one-year period of study with an emphasis on Japanese language study. We adopt a semester system: Fall and Spring. Fall is the first semester of the academic year, and the Spring semester the second. All applicants are encouraged to apply for the full year academic program. Course registration is held in each semester, and all course work is graded at the end of the semester based on attendance, class participation, papers, examinations and so forth. To accommodate the needs of both international students and those of Waseda students, however, SILS offers two study options: Academic Year and Semester.

(1) Academic Year

Fall Semester & Spring Semester (September 21, 2009 to late July, 2010*)

(2) Semester

Fall Semester (September 21, 2009 to the beginning of February, 2010*)

Or Spring Semester (early April, 2010 to late July, 2010*)

In all cases, the period of study chosen at the time of application cannot be changed subsequently, except in unavoidable circumstances. Course registration and student orientation are held before the beginning of classes, so students are expected to arrive at least ten days prior to the start of their period of study.

*These schedules are tentative and subject to change without notice.

2. Japanese Language Courses.

Before beginning classes, students take SILS Japanese language proficiency exams testing their reading, writing, hearing, and speaking abilities to place them in the appropriate class level, ranging from beginning to advanced. Classes meet three mornings a week. Study Abroad students are required to take 6-credit Japanese language courses in each semester. SILS also recommends they take a Japanese Language Elective Course (1-credit), but it is not required.

3. Lecture Courses

Since SILS is a liberal arts school, we offer various lecture courses categorized into the following seven clusters;

- (1) Life, Environment, Matter and Information
- (2) Philosophy, Religion and History
- (3) Economy and Business
- (4) Governance, Peace, Human Rights, and International Relations
- (5) Communication
- (6) Expression
- (7) Culture, Mind and Body, Community

All the lecture courses are 2-credit or 4-credit classes. One-year program students are required to take at least eight credits up to fourteen credits each in the Fall and Spring Semesters. A 2-credit course meets once a week. A 4-credit course meets twice a week. One lesson is ninety minutes.

4. Language of Instruction

At the One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS, all lecture courses except for Japanese language courses are largely conducted in English.

5. Syllabus

A syllabus will be provided at the beginning of each semester to help students to select courses. Information on the class schedule of the semester, textbooks and other readings, examinations, papers, and grading systems is given in the syllabus. If you wish to read a description of current courses or ones offered in past, please visit the URL below:
<https://www.wnz.waseda.jp/syllabus/epj3011.htm?pLng=en>

6. Assignments

Students are usually given substantial reading assignments for each course to prepare for the class discussions based on those readings. Papers are assigned along with examinations usually at the end and/or in the middle of the semester. Most of the papers are approximately ten pages about issues covered and discussed in the classes.

7. Class Participation

In the classroom settings, every student is expected to participate in the discussions led by the instructor and may be requested to give a presentation on a topic. Class participation is a large factor for evaluation.

8. Extra-Curricular Activities

One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS provides ample opportunities for extra-curricular activities for International Students during the academic year. These activities include lecture series and internship programs, both of which will help students gain better understanding of Japan through widely varied perspectives.

Examples:

Internship Program (to teach English in Nagano or Saitama, Japan)

University Athletic Festival

All-Waseda Cultural Week

Requirements for Admission

Students on the One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS are, in terms of student status, Consortial Students, Bilateral Students and Independent Students.

Category of Students

1. Consortial Students

Students admitted to the One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS under a student exchange agreement which Waseda University has concluded respectively with three U.S. consortia: the Great Lakes Colleges Association/the Associated Colleges of the Midwest (GLCA/ACM), the California State University (CSU), and the Oregon University System (OUS).

2. Bilateral Students

Students admitted to the One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS under a student exchange agreement between the Center for International Education and four overseas institutions of higher learning: Georgetown University, Washington University, University of Oxford and University of London as well as other institutions under academic exchange agreements that Waseda University has concluded with them.

3. Independent Students

Students admitted by applying directly to the One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS.

Semester-long Students

Students may be admitted to the One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS on a Semester-long basis. However, applicants desiring to study at SILS for only one semester must meet all the requirements below and need to submit the additional documents on Page14.

Requirements for Admission

Applicants have to meet the following requirements for admission. All applicants must:

1. be enrolled in a four-year BA program or the equivalent.
2. have demonstrated excellent academic and personal records at their home universities. For example, applicants from the U.S.A. must have a minimum GPA of 3.00 out of a 4.00 scale.
3. possess sufficient proficiency in English to carry out everyday tasks and understand class instructions. Students must have a minimum TOEFL score of PBT 550 (CBT 213, IBT 80) or an IELTS score of at least 6.0 (TOEFL-ITP score is not acceptable)*. If the applicant is unable to take the above tests in time for application, Waseda will also accept an official letter from the applicant's home university certifying an equivalent level of English proficiency.
* TOEFL and IELTS scores are required only for non-native English speaking applicants. However, non-native English speaking applicants studying at universities where the language of instruction is English are not required to submit these test scores.
4. have completed most of their secondary education (six years) in a non-Japanese educational system.
5. have completed at least one term of Japanese language study or the equivalent. Private lessons are not acceptable.
6. at the time of application, applicants have completed at least one semester at their home institution. At the time students begin their program at Waseda, they must have completed at least one year at their home institution.

7. be able to obtain a “College Student Visa” or other valid visa for studying in Japan (for example, a “Dependent Visa” before entering Japan).

Application for Admission

There are three ways to apply for admission as a regular international student.

- (1) as a Consortial Student participating in one of the study abroad programs of the three U.S. consortia
- (2) as a Bilateral Student applying for overseas student exchange at one's home institution
- (3) as an Independent Student applying directly to the One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS

SILS does not accept more than one application per applicant for a particular academic year.

Financial Information

Consortial Students

The expenses, fees, etc., for Consortial Students are handled directly through the offices of the respective programs. For further information, please contact the respective office or a home institution campus advisor.

Bilateral Students

For International Students who will be enrolled at the One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS as Bilateral Students, financial arrangements, in principle, differ from institution to institution according to the agreement. For further information, please contact your home institution.

Independent Students

Tuition & Fees
Application Fee

Application Fee	25,000 yen
Entrance Fee	70,000 yen
Fall Semester Tuition	633,000 yen
Spring Semester Tuition	636,500 yen

Health Insurance

Since medical costs are high in Japan, international students on the One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS are expected to have medical insurance to cover the entire period of their stay in Japan. Students who do not have a medical insurance plan in their home country are strongly recommended to apply for National Health Insurance, a Japanese Government Plan (Kokumin Kenko Hoken), at the district municipal office nearest their place of residence.

Miscellaneous Expenses

At least 30,000 yen per month will be needed for books, clothing, entertainment and so forth, though the amount differs according to each individual's life style.

Housing

There are three types of housing offered by SILS: Homestay, University Dormitory, and Private Dormitory. Some students choose to live in apartments, which must be arranged independently. Upon acceptance into the One-Year Study Abroad Program, SILS will inform you of your housing options. However, as a rule, Waseda University gives priority to Bilateral Students due to the extremely limited availability of international student housing. The figures below are based on the average case for each housing type. Living costs and rents will differ from individual to individual.

Estimated Living Costs (10 months)

Homestay Fee

Rent, Breakfast & Dinner included	830,000yen
-----------------------------------	------------

Your homestay fee will be calculated on a day-to-day basis in your arrival month, and in any period of extension of your stay based upon agreement with your host family. You should pay the due amount.

Immigration Procedures

Certificate of Eligibility

Japanese Immigration Control Law requires international students to obtain a proper student visa in order to study in Japan. The Certificate of Eligibility is the principal document needed for visa application. The Immigration Office will issue this certificate to the students through their admitted institution. SILS will apply for the certificate at the Tokyo Regional Immigration Bureau for all Academic Year Students and Semester Students. It usually takes one month for the Immigration Office to issue the certificate. Upon receipt from the Immigration Office, SILS will send the certificate to individual Independent Students by registered air-mail. For the Consortial and Bilateral Students, the Center for International Education in charge of the exchange program will send the certificate to the respective program office.

College Student Visa

The student should then submit the certificate, together with a completed application for a College Student Visa and his/her passport, to the nearest Japanese Consulate. This can be done in person and usually the visa is granted within a few days after the application is received.

If the student enters Japan with a visa for purposes other than for study as a student (e.g., for business or sightseeing), he/she will be required to change the visa status to a college student visa. In most cases, a student visa will be issued at a Japanese Consulate located in a country other than Japan.

Admission to the One-Year Study Abroad Program at SILS ceases to be valid if, for any reason, a student does not arrive in Japan the day before classes begin. Upon arrival at the university, the students will be required to present to SILS their travel documents such as passport, visa, etc.

Applicants of foreign nationality seeking to enter Japan and enroll in universities need to possess a valid passport and receive a valid visa. Upon visa application, an applicant is required to submit a “Certificate of Eligibility” together with his/her passport to a Japanese embassy or consulate in his/her own country. For foreign applicants, Waseda University acts as a proxy to obtain the Certificate of Eligibility from the Immigration Bureau of the Ministry of Justice (see page 15).

In order to complete this process in time, applicants are strongly required to submit a complete set of the following four materials at the time of application to the SILS. Please note that in some cases the Immigration Bureau may require additional materials.

Notes

1. Statement of Source of Funds (Bilateral and Independent Applicants only)

Bilateral and Independent Applicants have to submit this form together with “Application for Certificate of Eligibility”.

2. Written Oath for Defraying Expenses (Bilateral and Independent Applicants only)

Must be written by the sender of the applicant's funds.

3. Application for Certificate of Eligibility (For All Applicants)

-Fall-Semester student:5 months

-Spring-Semester student:4 months

(2) No.31 in Part 3

Please fill out the source of funds which will cover your housing and stipend, etc., as you filled out in the Statement on Source of Funds.

(If Waseda University waived the tuition, you have to prepare other costs.

If you are independent students, you have to pay both tuition and other costs.)

(3) No.33 and 34 in Part3

Please DO NOT fill out this part.

4. Documents to prove that you can defray all the expenses (tuition, fees and living expenses) incurred during your stay in Japan (Bilateral and Independent Applicants only)

(e.g.your bank account balance certificate, the bank account balance certificate of the sender of the applicant's funds, written proof of the receipt of a scholarship amount and duration.)
