

SAMPLE

Enter the Title of Master Thesis Here:
Enter Subtitle Here (Optional)

4023R000

Enter Your Name Here

C.E. Prof. WASEDA, Taro

Keywords: Keywords 1, Keywords 2, Keywords 3

This is an example style of the summary of master thesis of Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies. It should be formatted as A4-size. This template has all the necessary format settings as default, such as the font size and the top/side margins. Therefore, simply follow the format and do not modify its style. The first line is the title of your thesis. It should be centered. The font should be Times New Roman 12pt. The sub title in the second line is optional, so you can delete if you do not have it. It should be Times New roman 12pt and be centered. Put your student ID number, your full name and your Chief Examiner's name in the next line, followed by 3 or 4 keywords. The body should be Times New Roman 12pt. It should contain your research aim, main results, the components of the thesis, and main reference list. The word count is about 1400 (summary should be 2 pages in length). This sample has 1,377 words excluding the references. Include the pictures/tables of main results if necessary. Add a list of references at the end. When a reference requires more than one line, leave 3 alphanumeric spaces at the start of every line after the first. After this paragraph, it is loop of previous one for filling this summary template file.

This is an example style of the summary of master thesis of Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies. It should be formatted as A4-size. This template has all the necessary format settings as default, such as the font size and the top/side margins. Therefore, simply follow the format and do not modify its style. The first line is the title of your thesis. It should be centered. The font should be Times New Roman 12pt. The sub title in the second line is optional, so you can delete if you do not have it. It should be Times New roman 12pt and be centered. Put your student ID number, your full name and your Chief Examiner's name in the next line, followed by 3 or 4 keywords. The body should be Times New Roman 12pt. It should contain your research aim, main results, the components of the thesis, and main reference list. The word count is about 1400 (summary should be 2 pages in length). This sample has 1,377 words excluding the references. Include the pictures/tables of main results if necessary. Add a list of references at the end. When a reference requires more than one line, leave 3 alphanumeric spaces at the start of every line after the first. After this paragraph, it is loop of previous one for filling this summary template file.

[NOTE]

Please fill out the areas highlighted in yellow.

All the contents for summary should be 2 pages in length.

This is an example style of the summary of master thesis of Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies. It should be formatted as A4-size. This template has all the necessary format settings as default, such as the font size and the top/side margins. Therefore, simply follow the format and do not modify its style. The first line is the title of your thesis. It should be centered. The font should be Times New Roman 12pt. The sub title in the second line is optional, so you can delete if you do not have it. It should be Times New roman 12pt and be centered. Put your student ID number, your full name and your Chief Examiner's name in the next line, followed by 3 or 4 keywords. The body should be Times New Roman 12pt. It should contain your research aim, main results, the components of the thesis, and main reference list. The word count is about 1400 (summary should be 2 pages in length). This sample has 1,377 words excluding the references. Include the pictures/tables of main results if necessary. Add a list of references at the end. When a reference requires more than one line, leave 3 alphanumeric spaces at the start of every line after the first. After this paragraph, it is loop of previous one for filling this summary template file.

This is an example style of the summary of master thesis of Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies. It should be formatted as A4-size. This template has all the necessary format settings as default, such as the font size and the top/side margins. Therefore, simply follow the format and do not modify its style. The first line is the title of your thesis. It should be centered. The font should be Times New Roman 12pt. The sub title in the second line is optional, so you can delete if you do not have it. It should be Times New roman 12pt and be centered. Put your student ID number, your full name and your Chief Examiner's name in the next line, followed by 3 or 4 keywords. The body should be Times New Roman 12pt. It should contain your research aim, main results, the components of the thesis, and main reference list. The word count is about 1400 (summary should be 2 pages in length). This sample has 1,377 words excluding the references. Include the pictures/tables of main results if necessary. Add a list of references at the end. When a reference requires more than one line, leave 3 alphanumeric spaces at the start of every line after the first. After this paragraph, it is loop of previous one for filling this summary template file.

This is an example style of the summary of master thesis of Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies. It should be formatted as A4-size. This template has all the necessary format settings as default, such as the font size and the top/side margins. Therefore, simply follow the format and do not modify its style. The first line is the title of your thesis. It should be centered. The font should be Times New Roman 12pt. The sub title in the second line is optional, so you can delete if you do not have it. It should be Times New roman 12pt and be centered. Put your student ID number, your full name and your Chief Examiner's name in the next line, followed by 3 or 4 keywords. The body should be Times New Roman 12pt. It should contain your research aim, main results, the components of the thesis, and main reference list. The word count is about 1400 (summary should be 2 pages in length). This sample has 1,377 words excluding the references. Include the pictures/tables of main results if necessary. Add a list of references at the end. When a reference requires more than one line, leave 3 alphanumeric spaces at the start of every line after the first. After this paragraph, it is loop of previous one for filling this summary template file.

This is an example style of the summary of master thesis of Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies. It should be formatted as A4-size. This template has all the necessary format settings as default, such as the font size and the top/side margins. Therefore, simply follow the format and do not modify its style. The first line is the title of your thesis. It should be centered. The font should be Times New Roman 12pt. The sub title in the second line is optional, so you can delete if you do not have it. It should be Times New roman 12pt and be centered. Put your student ID number, your full name and your Chief Examiner's name in the next line, followed by 3 or 4 keywords. The body should be Times New Roman 12pt. It should contain your research aim, main results, the components of the thesis, and main reference list. The word count is about 1400 (summary should be 2 pages in length). This sample has 1,377 words excluding the references. Include the pictures/tables of main results if necessary. Add a list of references at the end. When a reference requires more than one line, leave 3 alphanumeric spaces at the start of every line after the first. After this paragraph, it is loop of previous one for filling this summary template file. This is an example style of the summary of master thesis of Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies. This template has all the necessary format settings as default, such as the font size and the top/side margins.

References

Inoue, T. (2001) Symbolic Computation for Asymptotic Expansions of Multivariate Statistics.(to appear)

Inoue T., Asahi Y., Yamaguchi K. (2001), 'An Advanced Statistical Information Disclosure over the Internet', Proceedings of the IAOS Satellite Meeting on Statistics for the Information Society, 208-217.