Admissions Policy

Focusing on the Asia-Pacific region, GSAPS seeks not only to conduct interdisciplinary research from the global and regional perspectives in the fields of regional history, politics, economics, industry, business management, society, culture and various international concerns, but also to deepen understanding of a growing Asia-Pacific region, and to mold future experts and researchers who can assume responsibility of the region's future.

GSAPS seeks students from both the domestic and international arenas, who are keen to learn and motivated to excel, and aim for a better future for the global society.

For our MA Program, GSAPS welcomes application not only from undergraduate students, but professionals who have relevant work experience, and seek to further enhance the well-being of global society, instead of just one's home country.

In respect of admissions evaluation, on top of agreeing to the fundamental ideology of the Graduate School, GSAPS attaches great importance to the following three factors.

1. Understanding of various global problems and the knowledge to identify and suggest solutions
2. Ability to think rationally and logically
3. Communication skills, including language ability required globally

I. Overview of Admissions

1. Outline of This Program

The International Relations Program of the Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies (GSAPS) at Waseda University has been selected for 2023 International Priority Graduate Program (PGP) of the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology (MEXT). The PGP program, which was created by MEXT to support programs which have international appeal to foreign students, provides priority allocation for government financed foreign students. The period of the scheme is from 2024 to 2026. Please find a detailed outline of the program offered by the GSAPS below.

(1) Purpose of the Program

The broader aim of the program is to promote cooperation with Asia and thereby realize greater cooperation among the international community as a whole. More specifically, the program aims to cultivate global leaders capable of addressing global issues, such as those outlined in the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

The global pandemic caused by COVID-19 has demonstrated that there is an urgent need for international cooperation and collaboration in addressing global challenges that extend beyond the framework of individual nation-states. It is expected that key global governing bodies, including United Nations agencies and international organizations such as the World Health Organization, will take the lead in guiding the world toward solutions when such challenges emerge. However, the story of this global pandemic seems to show that the present global governance mechanisms are not functioning effectively. Against this background, there has been a noticeable rise in recent years of non-cooperative and unilateralist posturing by countries as well as structural conflict between the major powers, the United States and China. Furthermore, Russia's invasion of Ukraine has increased international instability, and tensions are intensifying between countries or regions with different systems (political, economic, and social). In such a situation, it is important to build cooperative mechanisms based on mutual trust among countries with a cooperative orientation.

Japan has a track record of leadership and cooperation in the development of multilateral governance frameworks, such as the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement (RCEP) centered on East Asia, the Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP), the Free and Open Indo-Pacific Strategy (FOIP), the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework (IPEF) and the G7, the forum of the world's major industrialized countries. In this sense, one can argue that Japan is geopolitically and historically destined to play a key role in the development of global and regional cooperation frameworks to maintain a peaceful global order and address global challenges.

In 2023, as Japan and ASEAN celebrate the 50th anniversary of their friendship and cooperation, there is a need to further deepen the relationship with ASEAN, which is a very important partner both economically and geopolitically. In this way, Japan's role as an international leader is related not only contributing to the resolution of global challenges, but also the development of international frameworks to promote trade of goods and services, direct and indirect investment, and labor and technological transfer as well as to strengthening links between the Japanese economy and the world economy. Fostering such developments can be seen as a growth strategy and a means of achieving true internationalization of the Japanese economy, which has been suffering from long-term economic stagnation, allowing Japan to tap into global, and especially Asian, economic growth.

Based on the above, the program aims to develop human resources who can contribute to the construction of inter-regional and multi-layered governance that links regional cooperation, centered on cooperation with ASEAN, to the global level.

(2) Contents of the Program

The Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies (GSAPS) offers education and training in the following three specialized areas: "Area Studies", "International Relations", and "International Development / Policy Studies". The GSAPS curriculum allows students to firmly establish a foothold in one area of specialization while taking classes in other areas. It thereby systematically trains them to become specialists who can analyze the Asia-Pacific region from a wide range of perspectives. Under the guidance of faculty members with a wide range of expertise and backgrounds, students will study the multi-layered aspects of governance at global and regional levels as well as the specific fields and subjects (international relations, international economy, international politics, security, law, regional integration and cooperation, history, culture, information technology, environment, education, health, and human rights) it encompasses in a holistic and interdisciplinary fashion. The GSAPS curriculum provides students with the interdisciplinary and multi-layered intellectual training necessary to address the global challenges covered in the SDGs.

International students in the program will take specially designated compulsory courses, such as "Experiences in Development of Japan in International Society", "Experiences in Global Cooperation of Japan", "Sustainable Development and International Development Cooperation".

From the first year, students will join a project research seminar, assigned based on their research interest, to develop the knowledge, analytic skills, and methodological foundations necessary for completing an MA thesis and begin working on their thesis. In addition to the project research seminar, students will be required to do coursework under the guidance of their project supervisor by taking designated core courses, which are compulsory courses for program participants, and choosing from other GSAPS courses, which are grouped into core/basic courses and advance courses. The former aims to develop basic knowledge and skills necessary for academic research. The latter (including those offered by graduate schools other than GSAPS) aims to develop advanced knowledge and applied skills.

(3) Project Research

Students at GSAPS take small-sized project research seminars held under the guidance of their academic advisors, where they will learn and master skills to prepare and complete their thesis, to compile, analyze and review relevant information fully and to understand the research methodology. In principle, students belong to and work under one project research seminar respectively through all the school years since the first quarter.

Therefore, please deliberately choose the project research seminar/faculty fit to your own research field/interest from the list in the next page available in this academic year, by checking the information provided on the websites indicated on the next page.

Generally, all the applicants need to input their own choice(s) (the first/second preference) for project research in the online application, but if it is quite difficult to choose them, they may choose "None".

The final selection of the project research takes into comprehensive consideration the applicant's research plan/desire and all the other documents submitted during the application.

(4) Language

Classes and thesis/dissertation writing will be in either English or Japanese. To contribute to build global governance to achieve SDGs with Asia at the core, it is essential that students acquire the ability to manage projects involving problem identification and solving, using both English and Asian languages. To meet these demands, students who participate in this program are expected to undertake the study of another language, such as Japanese, English or other languages used in Asia, whose instruction is well provided at Waseda University.

Also, the institution the recommender belongs to may have restrictions on receiving e-mails. In such cases, the institution will need to add the domain name to their safe senders list. Please ask the recommender to re-register the account with the e-mail address that the applicant requested in TAO.
The recommender has entered required information and uploaded the recommendation letter but got an error when he/she clicked the Save button and could not complete the submission.	When entering "Recommender Information", there are some cases of unintentional spaces before or after letters or numbers, resulting in the entire page being unable to be saved and an error occurring.
