

Faculty of Political Science and Economics, Waseda University
Faculty Recruitment Information
(Experimental Economics)

The Faculty of Political Science and Economics (FPSE) at Waseda University invites applications for a tenured position (Associate Professor or Professor), with an expected (but negotiable) starting date of April 1 or September 1 in 2019. We seek candidates with a focus in the field of experimental economics.

Waseda University is a leading Japanese research university located in central Tokyo. The School of Political Science and Economics (SPSE), the predecessor of the present FPSE, started as early as 1882 and continues to enjoy a most prestigious position in higher education in Japan. For more information about the FPSE, please visit at <https://www.waseda.jp/fpse/pse/en/about/>.

Candidates will be evaluated based on the quality of their research and teaching experience. They must have a proven record of high-quality research and publications in experimental economics, and be able to teach microeconomics, game theory, or econometrics at the postgraduate level. Proficiency in Japanese is essential. Experience in laboratory management is desirable. For more information about our laboratory (Waseda Experimental Laboratory for Political Science and Economics), please see http://winpec.sakura.ne.jp/pse_experimental_laboratory/files/html.

The successful candidate will be expected to conduct research, teach courses at the undergraduate and postgraduate levels, supervise students, and perform services for the FPSE. All applications must be submitted via the following website: https://www.wasedapse.jp/en/fpse1/eng_input.php. The application deadline is 1:00 pm on September 20, 2018 (JST).
