

Revisions in the Handbooks for Undergraduate Students of The Faculty of Science and Engineering

Date	Revised on	on page	Explanation about Revision
2011/9/29	Handbook for AY 2011	11	Note "[1]" just below the Table on page 11. CURRENT: Student can also take courses offered in Japanese (i.e., non-IPSE courses) by the Faculty of Science and Engineering and other schools of Waseda University. In these cases, the credits earned will be counted towards the "Number of Credits Earned Freely from Groups A-C and other Courses. " REVISED: Students can also take courses offered in Japanese (i.e., non-IPSE courses) by the Faculty of Science and Engineering and other schools of Waseda University. In these cases, the credits earned will be appropriated to the "Number of credits you can earn freely from Groups A to D or other courses". For more details about how credits earned from them should be counted toward graduation, please refer to page 46 herein.
2011/9/29	Handbook for AY 2010	11	Note "[1]" just below the Table on page 11. CURRENT: Student can also take courses offered in Japanese (i.e., non-IPSE courses) by the Faculty of Science and Engineering and other schools of Waseda University. In these cases, the credits earned will be counted towards the "Number of Credits Earned Freely from Groups A-C and other Courses. " REVISED: Students can also take courses offered in Japanese (i.e., non-IPSE courses) by the Faculty of Science and Engineering and other schools of Waseda University. In these cases, the credits earned will be appropriated to the "Number of credits you can earn freely from Groups A to D or other courses". For more details about how credits earned from them should be counted toward graduation, please refer to page 46 herein.