■ 内容

Russian language programs are available for foreign students at all levels during the academic year (September to July) and during the summer courses (June to August).

Upon arriving at the Center all students are offered an assessment test on the basis of which the right level is recommended. Groups are formed in accordance with the results of the test, duration and purpose of study. Groups normally consist of 6-8 students.

The main objective of the program is to build and develop practical Russian language skills such as speaking, listening, reading and writing. Special attention is paid to the following aspects:

- Fluency and accuracy in oral communication
- Listening for comprehension and information
- Writing skills
- Vocabulary development
- Russian grammar
- Phonetics (as part of every lesson)

Teaching methods include simulated role-plays, reading and discussing texts, watching educational and feature films, special exercise o vocabulary and grammar and work in language laboratories and computers classes.
