Customised Study Programmes at the University of Auckland

The Customised Study Programme at the University of Auckland is dedicated to helping students improve both their English proficiency and their understanding of Language, Arts and International Business.

The University of Auckland is New Zealand's leading research university. Established in 1883, it provides a world-class education for over 46,000 students, including more than 8,000 internationals from 120 countries. The university is a vibrant, cosmopolitan community with over 2,000 academic staff and as many general staff. The University is located in the heart of cosmopolitan Auckland, the country's largest and most vibrant city, in which students are never far from breathtaking scenery, beautiful beaches and outdoor activities.

New Zealand is an excellent place to study international business given the dependence of its economy on international trade and investment. New Zealand's exports are renowned in markets such as Japan's while foreign investment and inbound tourism play a major role in the New Zealand economy. Policymakers and academics, Japanese included, give much attention to the 'New Zealand model'. Study at the University of Auckland also offers Waseda University students a distinctive insight into Maori (Polynesian) culture and those of Europeans settled in a remarkable new environment.

Waseda University students will spend two semesters studying at the University of Auckland, which is New Zealand's finest and offers Waseda University students a unique opportunity to study International Business, Arts and related fields. Students will enrol in a full-time load of four courses (60 points) per semester in the Faculty of Business and Faculty of Arts, which offers a broad range of diverse courses.

Students taking part in the University of Auckland's International Student Orientation programme will be presented with information about living and studying at the University of Auckland, offered advice on strategies for getting the most out of University studies and introduced to the unique culture, the beautiful landscape around Auckland City and also to other international students.

Between semesters, students will have a three-week study break during which they may wish to explore New Zealand, either as part of an organised tour or more independently.

Housing and Meal Plan

Students going to the University of Auckland for the English and Customised Studies programme will typically be placed with an English Language Academy approved homestay for the first four weeks. This enables Waseda students to live with New Zealand families, experience the 'Kiwi' lifestyle, and practice English in an everyday situation.

Then with the assistance of the English Language Academy staff, students may choose to move to alternative accommodation or continue to stay in homestay. Other accommodation options include university hostel accommodation (subject to the availability of places), and university approved apartment facilities adjacent to the campus. Advice can also be provided on renting accommodation for single or shared use.

Please note that, due to the availability of places, other accommodation options such as dormitory cannot be guaranteed after staying at the homestay for 4 weeks.

Opportunities for Learning Through Experience

The University of Auckland offers a wide range of academic and social activities for study abroad students. The University's main campus is surrounded by parks, beaches, galleries and theatres and it offers exciting opportunities for environmental and cultural experiences.

International Student Orientation Programme: The Orientation will present Waseda University students with information about living and studying at The University of Auckland, offer advice on strategies for getting the most out of university studies and introduce students to the unique culture, beautiful landscape around Auckland City and also to other international students.

Libraries and Learning Services: <https://www.library.auckland.ac.nz/>

University Clubs: There are over 200 clubs and societies on campus (administered by AUSA, the Auckland University Students' Association), and the range of activities on offer is as diverse as the groups of students who take part. From outdoor activities like tramping, cricket or rugby, to more sedate pastimes like international cuisine or poetry, students will be able to find a club to suit.

Weekend excursions: The University of Auckland's English Language Academy organises social activities for students on a weekly basis held on Friday evenings and/or the weekend during students' free time. There are also optional weekend excursions available to well-known New Zealand sites such as Rotorua, and the Bay of Islands as well as a wide range of activities for study abroad students which include visits to Maori communities and important cultural sights, trips into the truly spectacular New Zealand landscape, industry and farm visits.

Events:

Our City Campus is right in the heart of Auckland and students can discover the range of entertainment and events that the University and Auckland as a city have to offer.

- Waipapa noho marae
- Party in the Spark

- Spiritual and religious support
- Support for LGBTQI+ students
- Auckland University Students Association

Facilitation Plan

There is a dedicated Program Coordinator who, in conjunction with academic and personal support services, will be available to Waseda University students from their arrival in Auckland. Students will have regular meetings with the Coordinator, and will also be able to contact them by email and phone, if need be. Students will meet with the Faculty Student Adviser for course selection and to discuss any academic concerns which may arise during their course of study.

Credits

Students will generally undertake a standard full course load in The University of Auckland (four courses, 60 points total per semester). Students must be mindful of student visa requirements and credit issues at Waseda University. Their programme should be finalized in consultation with the University of Auckland Programme Coordinator and credit issues should be confirmed with the student's home faculty at Waseda University.
